V.

Defendant.

[illegible]

I, ABOU ELKASSIM BRITEL, of Bergamo, Italy under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America, declare as follows, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746:

- 1

- 1 4. On March 10, 2002 I was apprehended by agents of the Pakistani police on 2 immigration charges and was detained and interrogated by them at a facility in 3 Lahore, Pakistan. I repeatedly asserted my Italian citizenship and asked to be 4 afforded legal representation and assistance from the Italian Embassy. I was denied 5 those most basic requests.
- 6 5. Throughout my time in Pakistani custody I was physically and psychologically 7 tortured. They accused me of being a "terrorist fighter." I was beaten severely, 8 sometimes with a cricket bat, deprived of sleep, my hands and feet were bound and I 9 was hung from the walls or ceiling of my cell for extensive periods of time. I was 10 denied access to a toilet, my interrogators told me they would harm my family, and I 11 was told that worse torture and death were to come.
- 12 6. By April, 2002, following weeks of torture, I gave in to my interrogators and falsely 13 confessed that I was a terrorist. I hoped this would end my pain.
- 14 7. Soon after my "confession" I was brought before U.S. officials who fingerprinted and 15 photographed me. I was told that if I did not cooperate my Pakistani interrogators 16 would kill me.
- 17 8. May 5, 2002 I was transferred from Lahore to the Pakistani intelligence services 18 headquarters in Islamabad. I was, on four separate occasions, blindfolded and taken 19 from this facility to a house where I was interrogated by U.S. intelligence agents.
20 These agents continually asked me about my alleged association with Osama Bin
21 Laden and promised me money if I would give them information about Osama Bin 22 Laden. I again asked to contact the Italian Embassy and was again denied this request
- 23 9. At my final interrogation in Pakistan I was questioned by a U.S. official named 24 "David Morgan." Mr. Morgan told me that he was charged with writing a profile of 25 me for "Washington." Mr. Morgan asked me a number of questions about my life. I 26 asked Mr. Morgan if I could speak with the Italian Embassy, again I was denied this 27 request. Mr. Morgan did tell me, however, that I could meet with the Moroccan 28 ambassador, but this meeting never occurred.
10. Shortly after this last interrogation I was told by one of my captors that I would soon be released and returned to Italy.

2 11. Instead, on the night of May 24, 2002, I was handcuffed, blindfolded, and taken by 3 car to an airport. About one half hour thereafter, I was grabbed around the neck from 4 behind so tightly I thought I would suffocate. I was forced into what seemed to me to 5 be a small bathroom where my clothes were sliced off me. My blindfold was then 6 removed and I saw four or five men dressed in black from head to toe, with only their 7 eyes showing. I was photographed, had a diaper put on me, and was dressed in a torn 8 t-shirt. I was again blindfolded and placed in a metallic slip and chained to the 9 shackles that bound my hands and feet.

10 12. I was then dragged on board a small aircraft and forced onto my back. Shortly 11 thereafter, I heard a second prisoner being brought on board. I could tell by his accent 12 that he was not Moroccan. I believe that he was a prisoner because he sounded 13 wounded or ill and expressed pain and discomfort throughout the duration of the 14 flight. I was instructed not to move, and when I did I was hit or kicked. My back 15 began to hurt during the flight and I asked for permission to change positions. My 16 request was refused and instead I had my mouth taped shut. I was also denied use of 17 the bathroom for the duration of the nine hour flight. Upon landing, my handcuffs 18 were removed and were replaced with tight plastic bands.

19 13. Although, when in Pakistan, I had been told by my captors that I would soon be 20 released and returned to Italy, the aircraft I was on landed in Rabat, Morocco. After 21 my arrival here, U.S. officials transferred me to the custody of the Moroccan 22 intelligence services and I was taken by them to the notorious Témara prison.

23 14. Flight records show that on May 23, 2002 a Gulfstream V aircraft, registered with the 24 FAA as N379P, departed Washington, D.C. at 12:45 a.m. and arrived at Frankfurt, 25 Germany at 7:39 a.m. before taking off at 10:08 a.m. that same morning for Dubai, 26 United Arab Emirates, arriving there at 4:10 p.m. At 9.05 a.m. the next day, May 24, 27 the same aircraft departed from Islamabad at 9.05 p.m. and arrived in Rabat, Morocco 28 at 7.03 a.m. the following day, May 25. Less than an hour later, at 7.58 a.m. the aircraft departed Rabat for Porto, Portugal, where it remained overnight before departing Porto at 8 a.m. the next morning for Washington D.C., arriving back there

1 at 3.09 p.m. on May 26, 2002. Attached hereto as Exhibit A is a true and correct copy 2 of the relevant flight records.

3 15. The originator code on the flight plans for this itinerary and submitted to Eurocontrol, 4 the inter-governmental organization responsible for air traffic control through 5 European airspace, is noted as KSFOXLDI, a code specific to Jeppesen Dataplan.
6 Attached hereto as Exhibit B is a true and correct copy of the local "data string" for 7 the relevant flight plan.

8 16. I would spend the next eight and one half months at Témara completely cut off from 9 the outside world. I was denied access to my family, friends, counsel, and the Italian 10 consulate, and not once did I leave the four walls of the prison. I was held in 11 complete isolation and deprived of sleep and adequate food. I was interrogated about 12 my private life, the people I associated with in Italy, and pressured to act an informant 13 for Moroccan intelligence.

14 17. During these interrogations I was handcuffed, blindfolded, and severely beaten on all 15 parts of my body. I was threatened with worse torture, including having my genitals 16 cut off and "bottle torture" (a torture technique whereby a bottle is forced into the 17 victim's anus). Additionally, my interrogators threatened to harm my wife and my 18 sisters who lived in Morocco.

19 18. On February 11, 2003, I was released from Témara, without explanation or charges 20 having been brought against me.

21 19. On February 26, 2003 my wife flew to Morocco and I met with her for the first time
22 in twenty months. As a result of the torture I had been subjected to, I was suffering 23 from dizziness, chronic diarrhea. My left eye and ear had also been permanently 24 damaged. Large portions of my skin had turned black and blue and no hair grew in 25 these areas.

26 20. After my release I was continually harassed and threatened by agents of the Moroccan 27 intelligence service. They insisted that I tell nobody about my time at Témara.
28 Additionally, an officer visited me at least once a week and pressure me to cooperate with Moroccan intelligence upon my eventual return to Italy and to act as an informant for them.

2 21. Fearing for my own safety and that of my family I immediately attempted to return 3 home to Italy. However, I was unable to do so at first because my passport had been 4 confiscated in Pakistan.

5 22. On May 12, 2003 I finally received travel documentation from the Italian embassy in 6 Rabat which permitted me to return home to Italy. I did not want to fly home without 7 an escort, so I decided instead to travel over-land through Melilla, a town on the 8 border between Morocco and Spain. My wife had already purchased her plane ticket 9 home to Italy so we decided that she would begin her flight home only once she had 10 heard that I had safely made it out of Morocco.

11 23. On May 16, 2003, at approximately 10.00pm, bombs exploded in Casablanca.
12 Moroccan authorities blamed "terrorists" for the attack. Earlier that same day at 13 around 1.30 p.m. before the bombings occurred, I was arrested and detained at the 14 Moroccan border for six hours without any explanation. I was handcuffed, forced into 15 a car, and returned once more to the secret prison, Témara.

16 24. In Témara I was again held incommunicado, this time for four months. I was held 17 under atrocious conditions and was forced to sign a confession I was never permitted 18 to read.

19 25. On September 16, 2003, I was transferred to the Salè prison.

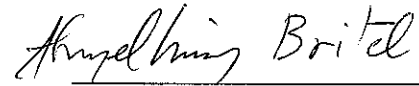

20 26. On October 3, 2003, after a hastily convened trial, I stood trial on the charge of 21 "gathering an armed band aimed at planning and carrying out terrorist acts" in 22 Morocco. I was convicted and sentenced to 15 years imprisonment for this offense.
23 My conviction was based in part on the confession I had signed while being tortured 24 at Témara. On appeal, my sentence was subsequently reduced to 9 years. An 25 observer from the Italian embassy who attended my trial reported that the procedures 26 followed were fundamentally flawed and failed to comport with universally accepted 27 fair trial standards.

28 27. On September 29, 2006, following a six-year investigation in Italy into my alleged involvement in terrorist activities, the examining judge there dismissed my case. He cited a complete lack of evidence linking me with any criminal, let alone terrorist-

1 related, activity. Attached hereto as Exhibit C is a true and correct copy of relevant 2 paragraphs of a resolution passed by the European Parliament noting this fact.

3 28. In January 2007, 62 members of the Italian Parliament, 25 Italian Senators and 12
4 Members of the European Parliament supported a request calling on Moroccan 5 authorities to pardon me, and, in addition Italy petitioned the King of Morocco to 6 have me pardoned, released from prison, and returned to my home, Italy. Despite 7 this, I remain incarcerated in Ain Bourja prison in Casablanca.

8 I hereby declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed this 9 02 day of 11 2007.
